Summary: Julia Vincent Cross (1901-1986) was a dancer, choreographer, actor, and teacher. The Julia Vincent Cross Papers consists primarily of documentation of her career through photographs, correspondence with organizations and artist agents, performance programs and flyers, two publications, and three notebooks, one of which is a collection of detailed choreographic notes. Cross's family history is documented through a family scrapbook kept by her father, materials detailing the artistic activity of her husband Philip Evergood (1901-1972), personal photographs, and legal correspondence relating to the Cross and Evergood estates.

Custodial History
Margaret (Margit) Swopes (b. 1928) was friend and caregiver to ballet dancer Julia Vincent Cross (married name, Julia V. Evergood) at the time of her death in Tucson, Arizona, in August 1986. Swopes was Cross's heir and executor of her will. Jacqueline Bland, a Tucson resident, acquired the Julia Vincent Cross Papers from the Swopes estate in 2014.

Accruals
No further accruals are expected.

Processing History
The Julia Vincent Cross Papers was processed by Libby Smigel in February 2017, and she coded the finding aid for EAD format in March 2017.

Other Repositories
Other repositories have several collections relating to Julia Vincent Cross and her husband, Philip Evergood. The Smithsonian's Archives of American Art has the Philip Evergood Papers, 1890-1971; Letters from Philip Evergood; Gael Hammer letters relating to Miles and Philip Evergood; an oral history interview with Philip Evergood by Forrest Selvig; and Philip Evergood interview with John I.H. Baur. The Photograph Archives of the American Art Museum has photographs of Evergood's artwork in the Peter A. & Son collection. Syracuse University has the Philip Evergood Papers, 1960-1967, and a collection assembled by Evergood's biographer, the Kendall Taylor Collection relating to Philip Evergood, 1900-1988 (the largest-known source of biographical information about Julia Vincent Cross and her husband).

Related Material
The Library of Congress Music Division has a number of collections (most notably the American Ballet Theatre Archive) that hold materials relating to the Mordkin Ballet and [American] Ballet Theatre, under which Julia Vincent Cross was trained and performed. There is a copyright deposit, available through the Library of Congress Manuscript Division, for a libretto for a two-act ballet titled Poet of the Stars by Morris Cohen (DU27911), which lists Julia Vincent Cross as choreographer for the ballet.

Copyright Status
Materials from the Julia Vincent Cross Papers are governed by the Copyright Law of the United States (Title 17, U.S.C.) and other applicable international copyright laws.

Biographical Note

Julia Vincent Cross, the name she used professionally as a performer, teacher, and writer, studied dance in Paris with Olga Prebrecenska and Alexander Volinine, and in New York City with Mikhail Mordkin and Alexander Gavrilov. She had also studied painting and drawing in New York and at L'Académie de la Grande Chaumière in Paris. Her professional dance performances began in 1927: most of her engagements were with the Mordkin Ballet, and she also appeared with the St. Louis Opera Company (1927), the New York Outdoor Stadium (1929), and the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo (1933). Starting in 1938, she began to teach dance in her own studio as well as for organizations such as the Dance Notation Bureau. With her husband Philip Evergood (birth name, Philip Blashki), she supported social justice causes, appearing in benefit performances. Her husband, who also designed costumes and created libretti for some of Cross's choreography, received commissions from the WPA for murals and art projects from 1934 to 1937. She studied acting and appeared onstage in a number of plays in the 1940s and 1950s, such as the pre-Broadway production of The Gypsies Wore High Hats at Falmouth Playhouse in Massachusetts and an off-Broadway production of Angel Street. In the 1950s, she published a number of articles about dance teaching and the Mordkin ballet technique.

Julia Vincent Cross was born on July 31, 1901, in Sandwich, Massachusetts; her twin sister, Ann, was born the following day. In 1924, while studying painting and dance in Europe, she met artist Philip Evergood (1901-1973), and they married in 1931. In 1973, Evergood died in a house fire that also destroyed much of his artistic output. She died in Tucson, Arizona, in 1986.

Scope and Content Note

Materials in the Julia Vincent Cross Papers document portions of the personal and professional life of Julia Vincent Cross (married name used: Julia V. Evergood or Julia Vincent Evergood). This four-box collection is divided into two series: Career Papers and Family Papers.

The series Career Papers is divided into four subseries: Notebooks, Performance Photographs, Programs and Flyers, and Miscellany. The notebooks include a unique journal recording choreography attributed to major artists and to Cross, a set of correspondence to and from booking agents and colleagues, and an acting binder with monologues, scene studies, fashion and beauty tips, and eight poems written by Julia Vincent Cross. The dance photographs span about three decades, many of them studio poses in costume, but also some of Cross among a ballet ensemble or with her students. One photo documents her theatre work. Performance programs include benefit and recital playbills and flyers from her career but also souvenir programs of major companies. The career-related miscellaneous items include two published articles written by Julia Vincent Cross on Mordkin ballet technique, several clippings, the Who's Who entry on Cross, and a book of Genthe's dance photographs as well as a small amount of clippings.

The series Family Papers is divided into five subseries: Cross Family Scrapbook, Personal Photographs, Philip Evergood, Legal Correspondence, and Miscellany. Information on the background of the Cross family is furnished through the thirty-year scrapbook kept by Julia's father, Philip Cross (1848-1922), which shows his advancement in business and social circles in a number of North American cities. Personal photographs include studio portraits of Julia at various ages along with informal snapshots of her with her husband Philip Evergood, with friends, and with her caregiver Margit Swopes. Snapshots show her home with Philip Evergood in Connecticut, and later her residence in Arizona. The Philip Evergood subseries includes the articles, exhibit catalogs, and other items documenting her husband's career as an artist she had retained at the time of her death. Legal correspondence includes letters and other documents primarily concerning the disposition of the estates of both Evergood and Cross. Miscellany includes a few personal items.

Organization of the Julia Vincent Cross Papers

The Collection is organized in two series:

- Career Papers, 1920s-1978
- Family Papers, 1854-1991
Description of Series

Container  Series

BOX 1, 3  Career Papers, 1920s-1978

Materials include three notebooks recording activities in her career, performance programs, photographs, published articles, and miscellany. The bound choreography notebook describes 29 dances of her mentors and her own choreography. The booking correspondence is predominantly letters and contact lists related to Cross's inquiries about performance opportunities or artist representation. The acting notebook begins with two hand-written journal entries about an acting engagement; thereafter, most of the pages are typed scene studies or monologues, beauty and fashion advice whose source is unknown, and a set of poems written by Julia Cross.

Arranged by first by format and then by date.

BOX 1  Performance Photographs, 1920s-1950s

Studio photographs of Julia Vincent Cross in dance and theatre costumes, alone, in ensembles, and with students; a small number of photos of unidentified subjects.

Organized by subject, then arranged by date when known.

BOX 1  Programs and Flyers, 1936-1974

Performance and souvenir programs along with promotional flyers for Julia Vincent Cross performances. One flyer for a recital of Julia Cross's students is original artwork painted by her.

Arranged by date.

BOX 1, 3  Miscellany, 1916-1978

Materials related to Julia Vincent Cross's professional interest in dance.

Arranged at item level.

BOX 2-4  Family Papers, 1854-1991

Materials collectively offer a glimpse into the family history and personal life of Julia Cross. A thirty-year scrapbook kept by Julia's father, Philip Cross (1848-1922), provides information on the background of the Cross family and his advancement in business in New York City. Photographs show her home with Philip Evergood (1901-1973) and later in Arizona; the scenes include exterior and interior domestic locations, as well as events. The couple are pictured with friends and pets, and later in life she is with her caregiver, Margit Swopes. Also included are assorted studio portraits of an adult Julia. In the subseries on her husband, Philip Evergood, a small number of articles, artwork, exhibit catalogs, clippings, and other evidence that she saved regarding her father-in-law's and husband's art careers are included. Legal correspondence documents the disposition of the estates of both Evergood and Cross. Materials in Miscellany are personal items and an inventory of the donated collection.

Arranged by format.

BOX 2  Personal Photographs, 1930s-1978

Chieffly studio portraits and informal photographs of Julia Vincent Cross Evergood alone, with spouse Philip Evergood, with caregiver Margit Swopes, with pets, and with friends. Locations include her homes, at the Smithsonian exhibit of Evergood's work, and unidentified locales and occasions.

Arranged by subject.
Philip Evergood, 1937-1983

A small number of clippings and articles, artwork samples, exhibit catalogs, and other evidence of the art careers of Julia's father-in-law, Miles Evergood, and husband, Philip Evergood, held by her at the time of her death. Note: she had previously donated most of Philip's papers to the Archives of American Art, Smithsonian Institution.

Arranged by subject.

Legal Correspondence, 1981-1991

Letters and other papers relating to Philip Evergood's or Julia Cross's estate, or to other legal or contractual matters.

Arranged by subject, and therein organized by date.

Miscellany, 1887-1975

Several personal items.

Arranged by subject.
