Voices of Civil Rights Project collection (AFC 2005/015), Archive of Folk Culture, American Folklife Center, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C.

Organizational History

Inspired by the 50th anniversary of the Brown v. Board of Education Supreme Court decision, the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights (LCCR), and the Library of Congress initiated the Voices of Civil Rights (VOCR) Project in 2003 to collect and preserve stories of individuals who took part in, witnessed, or were affected by the civil rights movement. The Voices of Civil Rights Project was launched in August of 2004 with an event on the National Mall hosted by WJLA's Maureen Bunyan. The History Channel also participated in filming interviews, some of which were used for documentaries produced by the television station. Selected materials were on view at the Library through March 26, 2005; afterwards, the original project materials were accessioned in the Library's collection and curated by the American Folklife Center.

Scope and Content Note

The manuscript submissions consist of correspondence from AARP members who responded to invitations in AARP Magazine and AARP Bulletin asking members to send in written vignettes of 500 words or less describing their civil rights experiences. This call for submissions was broadened when AARP published another invitation to general readers of the Sunday newspaper magazine Parade. Once the project had gained momentum, individuals were also able to submit their written experiences through the Voices of Civil Rights website and email. In addition, some interviewees from the bus tour also submitted written accounts. The majority of the 1,612 submissions are 1-2 pages; some participants included longer reminiscences and other items such as photographs and copies of related news articles.

The book My Soul Looks Back in Wonder is a collection of essays based on original audio interviews with 33 individuals. Authored by journalist Juan Williams, this book focuses on the experiences of both leaders and ordinary people who participated in or were affected by civil rights movements. This collection includes audio interviews with 82 people considered for the book, transcripts, book chapter drafts, and background research conducted for the book and submitted to AARP at the close of the project.

Beginning in Washington, D.C. on August 3, 2004, the bus tour traveled part of the 1961 Freedom Riders route and covered 48 cities in three months. By the conclusion of the tour, nearly 200,000 people had attended Voices of Civil Rights events in their communities. VOICR kick-off events with speeches and musical performances by local groups were held at many of the major cities that were visited, and audio and video documentation of these events are included in this collection. Still image documentation of the entire project was captured on digital and negative film. The team of journalists assembled for this project conducted the majority of the bus audio/video oral histories, capturing them on minidisks and Digital Video (DV) tapes. In addition to interviews captured by the project staff, a team from the History Channel also conducted video interviews for joint use by the History Channel and the project. There are approximately 1158 audio interviews with 32 corresponding transcripts and approximately 569 video interviews with 47 corresponding transcripts in this collection.

The administrative materials generated by AARP to track the growing collection of materials is also included in this collection and consists of promotional and press materials, Excel spreadsheets, inventory lists, and interviewer log notes.

Arrangement

The collection is divided into five series. Series I: Manuscripts includes email, mail, and web form submissions of individuals' experiences, thoughts, reminiscences of the civil rights movement, and administrative materials (Series II, III and IV also include transcripts). Series II: My Soul Looks Back in Wonder Interviews includes original audio interviews, transcripts, book drafts and relevant background research on individuals involved in the civil rights movement for the book My Soul Looks Back In Wonder, edited by Juan Williams. Series III: Bus Tour Interviews and Events Sound Recordings includes original audio interviews and transcripts recorded by Voices of Civil Rights staff and contract reporters on the bus tour across the U.S. and at other related events. Series IV: Bus Tour Interviews and Events Moving Images includes original video interviews and transcripts recorded by Voices of Civil Rights staff, contract reporters and History Channel staff on the bus tour across the U.S. Series V: Bus Tour Interviews and Events Graphic Images includes digital and film still images of Voices of Civil Rights participants, interviewees and locations taken during the bus tour across the U.S.

Series II: My Soul Looks Back in Wonder Interviews, 2003-2004

The book My Soul Looks Back in Wonder is a collection of essays based on original audio interviews with 33 individuals. Authored by journalist Juan Williams, this book focuses on the experiences of both leaders and ordinary people who participated in or were affected by civil rights movements. Subseries I contains a file for the 82 interviewees (many of whom were not included in the book) and may include emails, transcripts, book chapter drafts, and background research. Subseries II contains the audio recordings of the interviews conducted by journalists, and Subseries III contains photographs of some interviewees. A few of the interviewees for this series were also interviewed on the bus tour; those related items are included in Series III and IV.
