Scope and Content Note

The papers of Harriot Stanton Blatch (1856-1940) consist of scrapbooks documenting the women's suffrage movement in New York from 1907 to 1915, the year the suffrage bill passed the state legislature, thus allowing it to be put before the electorate. Arranged in fourteen volumes in rough chronological sequence, the scrapbooks contain clippings, correspondence, questionnaires, reports on debates, pamphlets, photographs, and annual reports of the Equality League of Self-Supporting Women, later called the Women's Political Union, which Blatch founded. At the end of the first twelve volumes is a selected subject index. Two scrapbooks (Vol. XIII and Vol. XIV) added to the collection in 1997 contain clippings dating between 1909 and 1912.

An historical essay by Nora Blatch de Forest, Blatch's daughter, at the beginning of Volume I highlights many of the political activities evident in the scrapbooks. These include appearances before congressional committees, distribution of suffrage literature, service as "watchers" at the polls, lectures before mass meetings, organization of suffrage parades, support for legislators sympathetic to the cause and opposition to those unfavorable, lobbying political parties to include the suffrage amendment in their platforms, monitoring bills through the legislature, and other actions. Volume XII is devoted to the centennial celebration of the birth of Elizabeth Cady Stanton.
