Provenance

The first part of the Puerto Rican Collection was received by the Library of Congress from the War Department after the American occupation of San Juan following the Spanish-American War. Manuscripts from other sources were added to the collection over the years, most notably by gift from the Puerto Rican historian, writer, and government official Cayetano

Coll y Toste, 1899-1900. An addition was given by J. H. Hollander in 1908 and by Victor S. Clark in 1928. In 2011, the Cayetano Coll y Toste Collection Relating to Puerto Rico which had also been acquired in 1899-1900 was united with other material received from him and organized as part of this collection.

Processing History

The Puerto Rican Collection was arranged sometime after its receipt and reorganized circa 1980 when portions were prepared for microfilming. Additional changes were made with the transfer to the collection of new material in 2011.

Additional Guides

The Puerto Rican collection is described in the Library's 1918 Handbook of Manuscripts, 527-529.

Scope and Content Note

The Puerto Rican Collection spans the years 1591-1900, with the bulk of the material dating from 1750 to 1898. The papers are in Spanish with some English. The papers contain documents from the Spanish colonial government of Puerto Rico including financial material reflecting budgets, data on imports and exports, and taxation, military papers from the War Ministry, and orders and decrees from the Spanish government. A wide variety of other papers document other aspects of Spanish colonial Puerto Rico including items concerning slavery, political prisoners, registration of foreigners, the fortifications of "El Morro" in San Juan, baptismal records, and politics. Many of these items had belonged to the Puerto Rican writer, historian, and government official Cayetano Coll y Toste and relate to his research interests. A very few items, mostly concerning education, date from after the Spanish-American War and the subsequent American occupation of Puerto Rico.
