Scope and Content Note

The papers of Herbert Hill (1924-2004) span the years 1869-2004, with the bulk of the collection dating 1944-1999. The papers document Hill's career with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) that commenced in 1948. Serving as the organization's labor secretary for twenty-six years, he fought racial discrimination by labor unions and tried to get government agencies that regulated unions and industries to be more effective in their enforcement of anti-discrimination laws. While with the NAACP and after leaving the organization in 1977, Hill also had a distinguished career as an author, editor, professor, and public speaker. He wrote and spoke on labor, racial, and other social issues and, though white, was an expert on African-American literature of the mid-twentieth century.

The Hill Papers, most of which are in English, are organized into six series: General Correspondence, Organizations and Projects, Legal File, Speeches and Writings, Subject File, and Oversize.

The General Correspondence contains letters exchanged with colleagues in the NAACP and other civil rights and social reform organizations; academicians, particularly in the fields of industrial relations, labor history, and African-American literature and culture; union officials and labor activists; writers, particularly African-American authors he edited and whose careers he followed; government officials; and friends.

Herbert Hill Papers
Files in the Organizations and Projects series document Hill's anti-discrimination work in labor markets when he was with the NAACP and as a professor of industrial relations and African-American studies at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Files in the series relate to trade unions such as the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, the Textile Workers Union of America, and the United Packinghouse Workers of America, as well as to large economic sectors such as agriculture and the building trades, and industries such as aviation, electrical and communications, entertainment, paper making, petroleum and chemical, hospitality, maritime, and steel. The largest file documents Hill's effort to address ingrained patterns of racial discrimination in the building trade unions through “hometown plans” such as the Boston, Chicago, and Philadelphia plans that aimed to establish affirmative action goals in the selection of minorities for union apprenticeship programs and in the hiring of a greater number of qualified minority craftsmen.

Hill took a close interest in union democracy movements, particularly the Teamsters for a Democratic Union within the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and in unions representing employees of unions such as the Federation of Union Representatives that organized employees of the ILGW. He also followed African-American dissident movements within unions. Examples include the Trade Union Leadership Council and the Dodge Revolutionary Union Movement within the International Union, United Automobile, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (United Auto Workers), and the black caucuses of the United Steel Workers, International Chemical Workers Union, American Federation of Teachers, and in the public transportation sector. There is also material on independent African-American labor organizations such as the Negro American Labor Council.

Also documented in the Organizations and Projects series are the federal, state, and local organizations that regulated unions and industrial sectors, investigated claims of racial discrimination, and enforced anti-discrimination laws and regulations. Some of the federal organizations include the Committee on Fair Employment Practice, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Labor Department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs, National Labor Relations Board, President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity, and the United States Commission on Civil Rights.

Herbert Hill was not a lawyer but he wrote extensively on legal issues and corresponded with judges, academics, and members of the labor law and civil rights bar about the conduct of litigation and the ramifications of judicial opinions. Most of this correspondence in the General Correspondence and Legal File series. Hill frequently served as a consultant on cases or as an expert witness, and he followed important labor discrimination and civil rights cases closely. In the Legal File are case files tracking labor law, anti-discrimination, and civil rights issues through all levels of the federal courts and to a lesser degree state and local courts. Initial administrative grievance cases brought before regulatory agencies such as the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission and the National Labor Relations Board are in the agency files in the Organizations and Projects series.

Herbert Hill was a prolific writer in the fields of industrial relations, labor history, racial discrimination in labor markets, civil rights, and African-American literature. He was a close friend of Richard Wright and edited two anthologies of black writing, Soon, One Morning, in 1963, and Anger and Beyond, in 1966. There are extensive files on both books, including correspondence with contributing authors, in the Speeches and Writings series. Contributing authors who corresponded with Hill while he was editing Soon, One Morning include James Baldwin, Arna Bontemps, Gwendolyn Brooks, Benjamin A. Brown, Frank London Brown, Lloyd L. Brown, Horace R. Cayton (1903-1970), Mercer Cook, Margaret Danner, Ossie Davis, St. Clair Drake, Ralph Ellison, James A. Emanuel, John Hope Franklin, Robert Earl Hayden, Chester B. Himes, Langston Hughes, Leroi Jones (Amiri Baraka), John Oliver Killens, Kristin Hunter Lattany, Almena Lomax, Paule Marshall, Nathan A. Scott, Era Bell Thompson, and Ellen Wright. Richard Wright died in 1960 while Hill was editing Soon, One Morning. There is one letter in the book correspondence from Hill to Wright after Hill had heard that Wright was ill. There is correspondence in the Soon, One Morning contributing authors' file between Hill and Wright's widow, Ellen Wright.

Other books by Hill documented in the Speeches and Writings include A Citizens Guide to Desegregation and Black Labor and the American Legal System. The Speeches and Writings also holds Hill's research, notes, and other background material related to unpublished book attempts including “The Abolitionists” and “White Privilege and Organized Labor.” Material on a community development project in Fayette, Mississippi is in both the Speeches and Writings and Organizations and Projects series.

Also included in the Speeches and Writings are extensive article and speech files. The alphabetical file of Hill's articles contains his longer works with background material and feedback correspondence. There is also a chronological file of his shorter articles.
The Subject File series includes an academic file documenting his visiting professorships and post-NAACP career at the University of Wisconsin, a personal and biographical file, and an extensive file of newspaper clippings.
