Scope and Content Note

The papers of Robert Orben (1927-2023) span the dates 1941-2019. The collection documents Orben's career as a comedy writer and humor consultant, and speechwriter for President Gerald R. Ford. The papers are arranged into five series: General Correspondence, Alphabetical File, Speeches and Writings, Miscellany, and Oversize.

This collection documents Orben's work as a comedy writer and promoter of humor. Orben initially focused on magic and magicians, but over time expanded his reach and wrote material for use by a wide range of performers and public speakers. A strength of this collection is the compilation of jokes and one-liners he wrote over the second half of the twentieth century, that he published under his own name, prepared for other performers, created for The Red Skelton Hour television program, and supplied for corporate events. His periodical, Orben's Current Comedy, a topical subscription service, contains jokes relating to the public figures, cultural trends, and current events from 1958 to 1989. A smaller amount of similar material from the 1990s that he sent to columnists and others is dispersed throughout collection. Orben's work as a promoter of and advisor on the use of humor in public speaking and his life-long connection to magicians and the magic profession are also documented. The collection complements a larger collection of Robert Orben Papers at the Gerald R. Ford Library in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Material pertaining to Orben's time as a speechwriter in the Ford White House includes memorabilia, photographs, an oral history transcript, speeches, and an unpublished memoir.

The collection's series are listed and briefly described below. A fuller description of each series and a list of its contents can be accessed in the series descriptions within the container list.

The General Correspondence series comprises a chronological grouping of letters sent and received by Orben between the years 1963 and 2019.

The Alphabetical File series touches on all aspects of his career and documents Orben's dealings with colleagues, publishers, publications, organizations, columnists, clients, and friends.

The Speeches and Writings series contains approximately sixty years of jokes, one-liners, writings, and remarks from Orben's career as a comedy writer and humor consultant for performers, television programs, public figures, and corporate clients.

A small Miscellany series contains additional material documenting Orben's life and career including press clippings and photographs depicting his work with President Gerald R. Ford.

The remaining series contains Oversize material.

Speeches and Writings, 1945-2018

The Speeches and Writings series contains approximately sixty years of jokes, one-liners, writings, and remarks from Orben's career as a comedy writer and humor consultant for performers, television programs, public figures, and corporate clients. His earliest material is included in a grouping of small self-published books, such as The Encyclopedia of Patter (1946), Magicdotes (1948), and The Working Comedian's Gag File (1956), that Orben wrote for magicians, emcees, comedians, and other performers. The largest portion of this material relates to his topical humor service, Orben's Current Comedy, that he edited from 1958 to 1989 with a small break between 1968 and 1971. This periodical, issued monthly and then bi-monthly, contains jokes and one-liners relating to current events and prominent figures in politics and entertainment. Orben later compiled some of this material into a series of books. Orben's writing for television is documented in an index card file arranged by topic, labeled "Skelton Stockpile," containing jokes he wrote for The Red Skelton Hour as well material he wrote for The Jack Paar Program in 1962. Another set of index cards contains material Orben wrote for comedian Dick Gregory's book, From the Back of the Bus (1962). Additional material relating to this project can be found in the Alphabetical File series. Another group of writings contains material he wrote for International Business Machines Corporation (IBM) corporate events. Orben's articles and essays about the writing, effective delivery, and use of humor in speeches, as well as his speeches and speech material about humor in the presidency are also included in this series. An unpublished memoir offers Orben's account of events in his life until the end of his time in the Gerald R. Ford administration. Additional jokes that he sent to individuals and publications, particularly topical material written in the 1990s, are located in the Alphabetical File series under the name of the person or publication. Material types include jokes, articles, books, book drafts, periodicals, a memoir, notes, interview transcripts, speeches, and scripts. Arranged alphabetically by title or type of material and therein chronologically. The file structure of the digital content maintained as received.

Speeches and Writings, 1945-2018

The Speeches and Writings series contains approximately sixty years of jokes, one-liners, writings, and remarks from Orben's career as a comedy writer and humor consultant for performers, television programs, public figures, and corporate clients. His earliest material is included in a grouping of small self-published books, such as The Encyclopedia of Patter (1946), Magicedotes (1948), and The Working Comedian's Gag File (1956), that Orben wrote for magicians, emcees, comedians, and other performers. The largest portion of this material relates to his topical humor service, Orben's Current Comedy, that he edited from 1958 to 1989 with a small break between 1968 and 1971. This periodical, issued monthly and then bi-monthly, contains jokes and one-liners relating to current events and prominent figures in politics and entertainment. Orben later compiled some of this material into a series of books. Orben's writing for television is documented in an index card file arranged by topic, labeled "Skelton Stockpile," containing jokes he wrote for The Red Skelton Hour as well material he wrote for The Jack Paar Program in 1962. Another set of index cards contains material Orben wrote for comedian Dick Gregory's book, From the Back of the Bus (1962). Additional material relating to this project can be found in the Alphabetical File series. Another group of writings contains material he wrote for International Business Machines Corporation (IBM) corporate events. Orben's articles and essays about the writing, effective delivery, and use of humor in speeches, as well as his speeches and speech material about humor in the presidency are also included in this series. An unpublished memoir offers Orben's account of events in his life until the end of his time in the Gerald R. Ford administration. Additional jokes that he sent to
