Biographical Note

Norman Luboff was a prominent musical figure in mid- to late-twentieth-century America. His career in choral music as a composer, arranger, conductor, singer, recording artist, teacher, publisher, and advocate promoted interest in choral music among the public as well as both professional and amateur musicians.

Born in Chicago on May 14, 1917, Luboff studied piano and voice as a child. After attending both the University of Chicago and Central College, he pursued graduate studies under the direction of composer Leo Sowerby. While teaching music theory at Central, he began singing and arranging music for popular Chicago radio shows. After serving with the Signal Corps during World War II and doing some radio work in New York, Luboff settled in Hollywood, where he became choral director for "The Railroad Hour," a weekly radio program starring Gordon MacRae featuring music from opera, operetta, and musical comedy.

In Hollywood, Luboff composed and arranged music for television, including the Bell Telephone Hour, Dinah Shore Show, Ford Star Jubilee, the Jerry Lewis Show, and for more than 80 motion pictures, such as Country Girl, Giant, and Island in the Sun. Among the many popular performers with whom he worked were Harry Belafonte, Rosemary Clooney, Bing Crosby, Vic Damone, Doris Day, Percy Faith, Katherine Hepburn, Frankie Laine, Ezio Pinza, Frank Sinatra, Jo Stafford, and Paul Weston. Among the song lyricists with whom he worked, Alan and Marilyn Keith Bergman are particularly notable.

The Norman Luboff Choir, organized during the 1950s, exposed millions of listeners to a wide range of music, from Renaissance polyphony to the characteristic Luboff arrangements of folk and popular songs. Among its more than 75 LPs, the album Songs of the Cowboy won the 1960 Grammy Award.

Luboff founded the Walton Music Corporation in the late 1950s to facilitate dissemination of his many compositions and arrangements and to introduce new compositions and arrangements by younger, less well-known composers. Later, the company played a significant role in promoting the music of Scandinavian composers, a project in which Luboff had a particular interest. In the 1960s and 1970s, he had made a considerable number of guest appearances as conductor and clinician with both amateur and professional choral organizations, most notably the Radio Choir of Denmark and the Swedish Radio Choir.

Luboff's interest in collecting the music of world cultures, especially that of the Scandinavian countries, resulted in his 1965 publication Songs of Man, a collection of more than 180 folk songs assembled by Luboff with the assistance of guitarist-musicologist Win Stracke and illustrator Paul Freeman.

In 1985, Luboff moved to Bynum, North Carolina, where he died two years later in 1987.

Scope and Content Note

Materials in the Norman Luboff Papers span the years 1940-1988, with the bulk of these items dating from 1955 to 1979. The collection primarily consists of Luboff's working music library of choral works and songs, but it also includes materials that document the performances and tours of the Norman Luboff Choir, the creation of Luboff's published book, and other projects.

The Music series spans from the mid-1950s to the late 1970s and consists chiefly of scores, sketches, and parts for arrangements by Luboff. Included are individual arrangements, as well as those created for larger projects such as albums, advertisements, theatrical productions, and other performance mediums, namely radio. Of special note among the materials not arranged by Luboff is his collection of Scandinavian folk music, which includes both Swedish and Dutch melodies.

The Tour-Related Materials consist of programs, itineraries, and other documents related to the Norman Luboff Choir tours and performances from 1963 to 1988. The Song of Man Materials series contains documents generated during the creation and publication of Luboff's book, Songs of Man: The International Book of Folk Songs.

The Miscellany series consists of all other non-music related material. Included are awards, clippings, press materials, programs, and scripts for theatrical productions and radio plays.

Organization of the Norman Luboff Papers

The collection is arranged in four series:

- Music, 1950s-1970s
- Tour-Related Materials, 1963-1988
- Song of Man Materials, 1965
- Miscellany, 1940-1988
