Jerry Valburn

Jerry Valburn was a prominent collector of recordings, sheet music, photographs, promotional materials, programs, newspaper clippings, and other materials related to Duke Ellington. Born in Plainview, New York, on December 19, 1925, Valburn began acquiring paraphernalia related to the composer and other musicians at age thirteen. He first heard Ellington perform in December 1940. In 1945, after serving several years in the United States Army, Valburn began to focus his collecting activities almost entirely on Ellington. In 1947, he met Ellington after a concert at Carnegie Hall. During the 1950s, Ellington invited Valburn to tour with the Ellington Band and record their performances. After that, Valburn moved to Long Island, New York, where he worked as an engineer for radio and television. Valburn donated his collection of recordings and other materials related to Ellington to the Library of Congress in 1991. He died in Deerfield Beach, Florida, on March 26, 2010.

Series
Printed Music, 1924-1975

This series consists of vocal and instrumental music that was printed between 1924 and 1975, with the bulk of the materials dating from 1931 to 1944. Duke Ellington composed the vast majority of these works, and notable items include sheet music for Ellington's vocal duet "Choo Choo (I Gotta Hurry Home)" (1924), "Mood Indigo" (1931), "Sophisticated Lady" (1933), and "Caravan" (1937). The series also contains a piano-vocal score for "I Got it Bad (And That Ain't Good)," which Ivie Anderson premiered in the 1941 revue Jump for Joy, and a 1961 piano solo version of Ellington's The Asphalt Jungle theme from the 1950 film noir by the same name. The piano solo version of Strayhorn's "Chelsea Bridge," printed in 1942, is also worth mentioning. Ted Grouya, Ted Koehler, Jimmy Johnson, Arthur Johnston, Jack Mason, Sam Coslow, and Frank Perkins are some additional composers and arrangers whose work is represented in this series, along with that of lyricists Johnny Burke, Mack David, Johnny Mercer, Irving Mills, and Mitchell Parish.

Arranged alphabetically by title.

BOX 1-4

Photographs, 1924-1972

This series consists of photographs of Duke Ellington and musicians who collaborated or performed with him professionally. The items date from about 1924 through the 1970s, with the majority from the 1940s to the 1960s. A small number of photos depict Duke Ellington alone in candid shots, publicity portraits, and while composing or conducting. In other photos, he poses with jazz musicians and band leaders Charles Mingus, Sy Oliver, Max Roach, Artie Shaw, and Chick Webb, as well as entertainers Danny Kaye and Louis Nye. The majority of the photos depict the Duke Ellington Orchestra rehearsing and performing on domestic and international tours. Sidemen depicted include Jimmy Blanton, Harry Carney, Sonny Greer, Billy Strayhorn, Juan Tizol, and Cootie Williams. This series also contains individual shots of soloists who performed with the band, including Harold Ashby, Kay Davis, Ella Fitzgerald, Norris Turney, and Ben Webster, among others.

Arranged alphabetically by subject, and by person or group depicted therein.

BOX 7

Programs, 1930-1973

This series consists of programs for performances of Duke Ellington and his orchestra as well as events honoring Ellington. In addition to programs for concerts across the United States, many of these materials document performances on international tours across Canada, Central America, the Middle East, South Asia, and Western Europe. This series also contains programs for events at which Ellington was an honoree. These events include, among others, Ellington's induction into the American Academy of Arts and Letters and the National Institute of Arts and Letters in 1970, Duke Ellington Day in New York City in 1967, and the ceremonies at which he received honorary Doctor of Music degrees from Yale University in 1967 and Assumption College in 1970.

Arranged in two file units and alphabetically by location therein.

BOX 8-9

Promotional Material, 1930s-1970s

This series consists of materials related to Ellington's performances and other professional engagements from the 1930s through the 1970s. Most events documented in this series took place between 1958 and 1972. Items include the press kit titled Duke Ellington and His Famous Orchestra, press releases, and record and sheet music catalogs. In addition, the series contains booklets from his band's international tours across Europe, Japan, Mexico, Nicaragua, and Russia, as well as tours within the United States.

Arranged alphabetically by material type.

BOX 10-13, 17

Articles, 1933-1985

This series consists of journal and magazine articles about Ellington's life, compositional style, performing engagements, and contributions to jazz. Articles date between 1933 and 1985, with the majority from 1961 and 1974, and were published in prominent sources such as ASCAP Today, Chicago Times Magazine, Down Beat, Ebony, and New York Times Magazine. While primarily in English, several articles are in French, German, and Japanese. Included are six articles that Duke Ellington wrote about his view of jazz and its future as a genre. Other notable authors represented include Joachin Berendt, Stanley Dance, Leonard Feather, Derek Jewell, Edward Morrow, Barry Ulanov, and Jerry Valburn. In addition, this series contains five tribute issues dedicated to Ellington: Jazz Magazine from 1943, Jazz Hot in 1950, Down Beat from 1952, Record Research from 1974, and Contemporary Keyboard in 1978.

Arranged alphabetically by author's last name.

BOX 14-17

Clippings, 1930-1989

This series contains newspaper and magazine clippings that document significant moments in Duke Ellington's professional career, such as performance engagements and record releases, as well as events at which he was honored after his death. The materials date between 1930 and 1989, with the majority from the 1960s and 1970s. Downbeat, Guideposts, Jet, Metronome, New York Daily News, New York Times, Swing, Time, and The Washington Post are among the sources for the clippings.

Arranged chronologically or alphabetically by source title.

BOX 9, 16

Miscellany, 1969-1987

This series consists of five items dating between 1969 and 1987. Significant items include a silkscreen print of Duke Ellington by John Scollard that dates from 1969, and a color print of Billy Strayhorn that Duke Ellington completed in 1973.

Arranged alphabetically by material type.

Articles, 1933-1985

This series consists of journal and magazine articles about Ellington's life, compositional style, performing engagements, and contributions to jazz. Articles date between 1933 and 1985, with the majority from 1961 and 1974, and were published in prominent sources such as ASCAP Today, Chicago Times Magazine, Down Beat, Ebony, and New York Times Magazine. While primarily in English, several articles are in French, German, and Japanese. Included are six articles that Duke Ellington wrote about his view of jazz and its future as a genre. Other notable authors represented include Joachim Berendt, Stanley Dance, Leonard Feather, Derek Jewell, Edward Morrow, Barry Ulanov, and Jerry Valburn. In addition, this series contains five tribute issues dedicated to Ellington: Jazz Magazine from 1943, Jazz Hot in 1950, Down Beat from 1952, Record Research from 1974, and Contemporary Keyboard in 1978.
