Summary: Nicolò Paganini was an Italian violinist, violist, and composer known for his technical prowess and virtuosity. This collection contains a significant amount of iconography depicting Paganini as well as other composers and related objects and places. Other materials include manuscript and printed music, correspondence, programs, publicity materials, personal papers, publications, and clippings that document Paganini's professional activities and personal life. Additional catalogs, inventories, and other materials in the papers of Maia Bang Hohn provide further information about the contents and history of the collection.

Online Content: Several works in the Music series and one lithograph are available on the Library of Congress website. Please see the container list entries for links to the digital representations. Digitized images of other Library materials featuring Paganini are also available on the website.

Acquisition Information

Purchases with Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation funds, 1944 and 1957

Gift, Elisabeth A. Bondy, March 11, 1949

Gift, Geraldine DeCourcy, October 1951

Gift, Thomas L. Fawick, 1962

Custodial History

The materials that Maia Bang Hohn assembled for a projected biography of Paganini comprise the largest portion of the collection. Many of the papers and diaries were in the possession of the Paganini family until 1910, at which point dealer Luigi Bastianelli sold the materials at auction to Frankfurt dealer Joseph Baer. In 1927, V. A. Heck of Vienna sold them to Hohn. The Music Division purchased her archive in 1944 from her husband, Charles Hohn, with funds from the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation and kept it as a distinct unit within the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation Collection.

Elisabeth Bondy donated sixteen items to the Library in March 11, 1949; Geraldine DeCourcy donated a photograph in October 1951; and Thomas L. Fawick donated the Register of Letters in 1962.

The Library purchased approximately fifty items, including correspondence and personal papers, from the Tolozzi Librai in 1957 with funds from the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation.

Accruals

No further accruals are expected.

Processing History

Musicologist Warren Kirkendale inventoried the supplemental materials in the mid-1960s. Wilda Heiss began processing and coordinating preservation treatments for materials in the collection in the early to mid-1990s. Susan Clermont and Jungeun Elle Kim created a detailed inventory in 2012 based exclusively on the catalog compiled by Maia Bang Hohn and added information about the iconography. Jane Cross completed processing in 2021. Cross, Melissa Capozio Jones, and Rachel McNellis coded the finding aid in 2021, based largely on the 2012 inventory.

Scope and Content Note

The Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation Collection on Nicolò Paganini, a sub-collection of the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation Collection, spans the years 1810 to 1967 and consists of iconography, music, correspondence, programs, publicity materials, personal papers, publications, and clippings related to Paganini, most of which date from 1830 to 1840.

The Iconography series consists of images in a variety of media that depict Paganini and other musicians, as well as objects and places related to Paganini.

The Music series contains manuscript and printed scores, parts, and sketches for works that Paganini and other composers created.

The collection also contains a significant amount of Correspondence that other musicians, royalty, organizations, friends, and family wrote to each other and to Paganini, as well as letters in Paganini's hand and a small number of envelopes.

The Programs and Publicity materials document the violinist's concerts in England, Germany, and Austria.

The collection contains many of Paganini's Personal Papers, such as awards, contracts, financial papers, invitations, notebooks, poetry, cards, and miscellaneous fragments.

The Publications series includes books and magazine articles about Paganini's life and performance technique.

Numerous Clippings include reviews and advertisements for his performances across Europe.

In addition to these materials, the collection contains Papers of Maia Bang Hohn that provide information about the materials she collected and their provenance.

Nearly every item in the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation Collection on Nicolò Paganini has been inventoried and assigned a number either by the collectors or Library staff. Maia Bang Hohn was responsible for most of the "Catalog no." designations in her collection. Approximately 60 uncataloged items from Hohn were later assigned "MBC misc." numbers, which represent Maia Bang Catalog miscellaneous items. Materials donated by Elisabeth A. Bondy were assigned a "Bondy no.," and items acquired from the Libreria Tolozzi have "WF" ("Whittall Foundation") numbers.

Series

Iconography, 1810-1926 (bulk 1830-1840)

This series contains images of Paganini, other people, objects, and places. The materials include lithographs, engravings, watercolors, oil prints, pen drawings, photographs, negatives, and other types of visual media that were created in England, France, Italy, Germany, and Austria.

Portraits of Paganini comprise the majority of these materials, many of which are simple busts or depict him either holding or playing the violin. In several images he plays solely on one string, a technique for which he was widely known. In others, Paganini plays with his violin tilted downward and close to the body, enabling him to perform highly virtuosic passages.

In a small number of images, Paganini performs with other musicians, including composer and close friend Gioachino Rossini, pianist Johann Baptist Cramer, cellist Richard Lindley, double bassist Domenico Dragonetti, and violinist Nicolas Mori. An original wash drawing depicts him playing outside the bedchamber of Maria Anna Bacciocchi, Napoleon Bonaparte's sister. In another image, he accompanies ballet dancer Marie Taglioni. Additional portraits show him in prison or on his deathbed. Paganini inscribed two portraits in this series, including an engraved half-portrait from 1830 in which he holds a violin and bow, and a pen drawing from 1832.

These materials also contain a substantial number of caricatures that show him performing in concert halls, sawing blocks of wood, firing a cannon, or playing the violin with a broomstick. Of note are the many images in which demons and witches appear. This connection with evil creatures recalls the wide-spread legend that Paganini sold his soul to the devil in exchange for remarkable skill and talent. Although the result of ill health, those who saw him perform remarked that his sunken cheeks, pale skin, and thin lips were further evidence of this pact.

The second portion of this series contains portraits of other musicians, including Archangelo Corelli, Gasparo Ghiretti, Franz Liszt, Gioachino Rossini, Louis Spohr, Antonio Stradivari, Giuseppe Tartini, and Giovanni Barista Viotti. Additional images display political figures, including Napoleon Bonaparte and Princess Elise Bacciocchi, Elisa the Grand Duchess of Tuscany. Numerous other images depict Paganini's son, Achille, and other relatives. Finally, there are images of objects, including several instruments that Paganini owned, and locations in Genoa, Nice, and Parma.

Arranged in four file units: Paganini, Portraits of Others, Objects, and Locations.

BOX 12-13, 15, 18, 25, 28-29

Music, 1829-1935

This series consists of manuscript and printed scores, parts, sketches, and method books for works that Paganini and other composers created between 1829 and 1935, the majority of which date from 1818 to 1832. The manuscript scores for Paganini's Quartetto no. 11 in B major, Quartetto no. 12 in A minor, Quartetto no. 13 in F major, and Quartetto no. 14 in A major are especially notable, as are a number of sketches for some of his unpublished works. This series also includes published copies of select variations, quadrilles, fantasies, and airs for violin that Paganini composed.

The works by other composers include method books based on Paganini's technique by Carl Guhr and Roberto Mantovani, several fantasias that J. Moscheles dedicated to Paganini, and T. B. Phipps's arrangements of six airs by Paganini.

Arranged alphabetically by composer and title therein.

Correspondence, 1822-1844

This series consists primarily of correspondence between Nicolò Paganini and notable musicians, statesmen, royalty, organizations, friends, and family members. It also contains a small number of envelopes. Some letters are accompanied by receipts, contracts, rental slips, and legal documents regarding Paganini's estate.

Arranged in two subseries.

Letters to Paganini and Others, 1828-1844

This subseries consists of letters that musicians, statesmen, royalty, organizations, friends, and family members wrote primarily to Nicolò Paganini. Unless otherwise noted, items in this series are holograph letters addressed to Paganini, including a substantial amount of correspondence from Luigi Guglielmo Germi, his close friend and legal advisor.

A holograph letter from composer Gioachino Rossini is also especially notable. Paganini's connections with other musicians and artists are further documented in letters from violinists Carlo Bignami, composer Fermo Bellini, and scenic painter Filippo Zafforini. Also present are letters from royalty, including the King of Prussia Frederick William III, the Duchess of Parma Marie-Louise, Princess Louise Radziwill of Prussia, and Baron Anton von Doblhoff. Letters from the Berlin Institute for the Blind, Children's Hospital Committee in London, the Committee of Polish Exiles in London, the Musical Society of London, and the New Musical Fund, among other organizations, offer further insight into Paganini's professional associations. His familial relationships are also documented by a small number of letters from sisters Nicoletta Ghisolfi and Domenica Paganini.

A photocopy of a letter from Princess Maria Luigi to Luigi Guglielmo Germi that legitimizes Paganini's natural son, Achille, is of special interest. Other notable items are those from Achille Paganini to Marchese Lorenzo Nicolo Pareto, and letters from Paolo Lusardi to Luigi Guglielmo Germi.

Arranged alphabetically by correspondent.

Letters from Paganini, 1822-1840

This subseries consists of letters that Nicolò Paganini wrote to musicians, statesmen, royalty, organizations, friends, and family members. These materials are written in Paganini's hand unless otherwise noted. A letter to the Duchy of Parma pertaining to the reorganization of the Ducal Orchestra of Parma is notable. Correspondence with German actress Amalie Haizinger, her husband and operatic tenor Anton Haizinger, and composer Antonio Pacini document Paganini's connections within the broader cultural milieu. Additional letters to Director of the Musée de Parma and the Teatri S. Agostino in Genoa document some of his performing activities. Other notable recipients include Paganini's friend and lawyer Luigi Guglielmo Germi, and his son, Achille Paganini. Approximately half of these letters are unidentified, some of which are incomplete.

Arranged alphabetically by recipient and chronologically therein.

Programs and Publicity, 1828-1937

This series is comprised largely of printed programs and playbills for concerts at which Paganini performed between 1828 and 1834. It contains a considerable number of materials from his numerous performances in England, including those at the King's Theatre in London, the Theatre Royal in Covent Garden, and other venues in Brighton, Bath, Drury Lane, and Vauxhall. His appearances at the Royal Redouten-Saale and Stuttgarter Hof-Theatre in Germany, as well as the Kärnthnerthor-Theater in Vienna, are also documented. One hand-written program from an unidentified concert in 1828 is also notable. The series contains a small number of programs and promotional posters for performances that took place between 1865 and 1937, after Paganini's death, in Edinburgh, Piccadilly, and London.

These concerts and stage performances featured works that other composers dedicated to Paganini, including an opera and operetta.
Arranged chronologically.

Personal Papers, 1827-1847

This series consists of awards, contracts, financial papers, invitations, notebooks, poetry, cards, and miscellaneous fragments pertaining to Paganini's professional activities and personal life. The so-called Secret Red Notebook is well known and contains extensive biographical information, tour dates, financial notes, address lists, prescriptions, recipes, a laundry list, and poetry. Paganini never allowed others to view the notebook, which resulted in the false assumption that it contained the key to mastering his unparalleled technique. An account book and two pocket calendars are also valuable sources of information about his European tour.

Among the financial papers are bank statements, receipts, and records documenting the number of seats sold at his concerts. A number of awards, two of which Frederick William III, King of Prussia, signed, further confirm his widespread popularity across Italy and Austria. Invitations for performances in Hanover, Magdeburg, Breslau, Mannheim, Karlsruhe, Paris, and America also attest to his international renown. Additional items document his tenure with the Parma Orchestra, as well as his final illness and death.

Arranged alphabetically by material type.

BOX 21, 23-26, 28-29

Publications, 1830-1967

This series contains books and magazine articles about Paganini that were published between 1830 and 1967, although most date from 1892 to 1938. These materials were published in multiple languages, including English, German, French, Italian, and Norwegian. While biographies constitute the majority of these publications, they also contain a script for Count Alfred Hessenstein's play Paganini, Emil Kross's guide to performing Paganini's 24 Capriccio, and Harold Spivacke's article Paganiniana, which provides an overview of the history of the Library of Congress collection and its contents. Other publications focus on Paganini's stage presence, physical behaviors, and virtuosity. Pietro Berri, Siegfried Eberhardt, François-Joseph Fetis, Georg Harrys, Julius Kapp, Adolfo Artur Kuhnert, Renée de Saussine, and Jules Siber are among the other significant authors in this series.

Arranged alphabetically by author and title therein.

BOX 2, 14, 17-18,
20-21

Clippings, 1818-1939

This series consists of newspaper clippings, the majority of which are advertisements and reviews for Paganini's performances between 1828 and 1834. Other clippings include poetry, biographical sketches, accounts of Paganini's lawsuits, obituaries, and a copy of his will. In addition, several price lists for concerts, receipts, and reports of profits offer insight into the financial aspects of his performances. A few clippings that date from after his death contain biographical and concert reviews, several of which perpetuate the myth that he made a deal with the devil in exchange for his talents.

Arranged chronologically and then by catalog number.

BOX 22, 27

Papers of Maia Bang Hohn, 1910-1939

This series consists of correspondence, dealer's folders, leaflets, inventories, and notes by Maia Bang Hohn that provide further information, including provenance, about items in her collection of Paganini materials. Of particular note is the Maia Bang Hohn Catalog.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

a small number of envelopes. Some letters are accompanied by receipts, contracts, rental slips, and legal documents regarding Paganini's estate.

Arranged in two subseries.

Letters to Paganini and Others, 1828-1844

This subseries consists of letters that musicians, statesmen, royalty, organizations, friends, and family members wrote primarily to Nicolò Paganini. Unless otherwise noted, items in this series are holograph letters addressed to Paganini, including a substantial amount of correspondence from Luigi Guglielmo Germi, his close friend and legal advisor.

A holograph letter from composer Gioachino Rossini is also especially notable. Paganini's connections with other musicians and artists are further documented in letters from violinists Carlo Bignami, composer Fermo Bellini, and scenic painter Filippo Zafforini.

Also present are letters from royalty, including the King of Prussia Frederick William III, the Duchess of Parma Marie-Louise, Princess Louise Radziwill of Prussia, and Baron Anton von Doblhoff. Letters from the Berlin Institute for the Blind, Children's Hospital Committee in London, the Committee of Polish Exiles in London, the Musical Society of London, and the New Musical Fund, among other organizations, offer further insight into Paganini's professional associations. His familial relationships are also documented by a small number of letters from sisters Nicoletta Ghisolfi and Domenica Paganini.

A photocopy of a letter from Princess Maria Luigi to Luigi Guglielmo Germi that legitimizes Paganini's natural son, Achille, is of special interest. Other notable items are those from Achille Paganini to Marchese Lorenzo Nicolo Pareto, and letters from Paolo Lusardi to Luigi Guglielmo Germi.

Arranged alphabetically by correspondent.

This subseries consists of letters that Nicolò Paganini wrote to musicians, statesmen, royalty, organizations, friends, and family members. These materials are written in Paganini's hand unless otherwise noted. A letter to the Duchy of Parma pertaining to the reorganization of the Ducal Orchestra of Parma is notable. Correspondence with German actress Amalie Haizinger, her husband and operatic tenor Anton Haizinger, and composer Antonio Pacini document Paganini's connections within the broader cultural milieu. Additional letters to Director of the Musée de Parma and the Teatri S. Agostino in Genoa document some of his performing activities. Other notable recipients include Paganini's friend and lawyer Luigi Guglielmo Germi, and his son, Achille Paganini. Approximately half of these letters are unidentified, some of which are incomplete. Arranged alphabetically by recipient and chronologically therein.

BOX 11-12, 14, 19, 20, 29	Programs and Publicity, 1828-1937 This series is comprised largely of printed programs and playbills for concerts at which Paganini performed between 1828 and 1834. It contains a considerable number of materials from his numerous performances in England, including those at the King's Theatre in London, the Theatre Royal in Covent Garden, and other venues in Brighton, Bath, Drury Lane, and Vauxhall. His appearances at the Royal Redouten-Saale and Stuttgarter Hof-Theatre in Germany, as well as the Kärnthnerthor-Theater in Vienna, are also documented. One hand-written program from an unidentified concert in 1828 is also notable. The series contains a small number of programs and promotional posters for performances that took place between 1865 and 1937, after Paganini's death, in Edinburgh, Piccadilly, and London. These concerts and stage performances featured works that other composers dedicated to Paganini, including an opera and operetta. Arranged chronologically.

BOX 3, 10-12, 17, 19-22	Personal Papers, 1827-1847 This series consists of awards, contracts, financial papers, invitations, notebooks, poetry, cards, and miscellaneous fragments pertaining to Paganini's professional activities and personal life. The so-called Secret Red Notebook is well known and contains extensive biographical information, tour dates, financial notes, address lists, prescriptions, recipes, a laundry list, and poetry. Paganini never allowed others to view the notebook, which resulted in the false assumption that it contained the key to mastering his unparalleled technique. An account book and two pocket calendars are also valuable sources of information about his European tour. Among the financial papers are bank statements, receipts, and records documenting the number of seats sold at his concerts. A number of awards, two of which Frederick William III, King of Prussia, signed, further confirm his widespread popularity across Italy and Austria. Invitations for performances in Hanover, Magdeburg, Breslau, Mannheim, Karlsruhe, Paris, and America also attest to his international renown. Additional items document his tenure with the Parma Orchestra, as well as his final illness and death. Arranged alphabetically by material type.

BOX 2, 14, 17-18, 20-21	Clippings, 1818-1939 This series consists of newspaper clippings, the majority of which are advertisements and reviews for Paganini's performances between 1828 and 1834. Other clippings include poetry, biographical sketches, accounts of Paganini's lawsuits, obituaries, and a copy of his will. In addition, several price lists for concerts, receipts, and reports of profits offer insight into the financial aspects of his performances. A few clippings that date from after his death contain biographical and concert reviews, several of which perpetuate the myth that he made a deal with the devil in exchange for his talents. Arranged chronologically and then by catalog number.
