Summary: Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson comprised the piano duo Bartlett and Robertson, who were active in the first half of the twentieth century. They met as students at the Royal Academy of Music and married in 1921, forming their piano duo shortly thereafter. The collection includes primarily manuscript music, both newly composed works for piano duet and two-piano transcriptions and arrangements, as well as compositions written by Bartlett and Robertson. Of note are holograph scores of commissions for the duo by Benjamin Britten, Arnold Bax, and others. Also included are writings, programs, correspondence, and other papers pertaining to Bartlett and Robertson's careers and personal lives.

Biographical Sketches

Ethel Bartlett

Ethel Bartlett was born on June 6, 1896, in Epping, England. She began studying at the Royal Academy of Music in London in 1915 and became a pupil of the English pianist Tobias Matthay. She graduated from the Academy in 1919 and later studied in Berlin under Arthur Schnabel. She often performed as a piano accompanist for solo artists, notably cellist John Barbirolli during the 1920s, and continued to perform with him after she and Robertson married in 1921 and formed their duo in 1924. She continued performing and teaching after Robertson's death in 1956. Bartlett died on April 17, 1978, in Los Angeles, California.

Rae Robertson

John Rae Robertson was born on November 29, 1893, in Inverness, Scotland. He began studies in language at the University of Edinburgh and then continued his music studies at the Royal Academy of Music in London in 1914, studying under Tobias Matthay. His schooling was cut short by World War I. He was drafted in 1915 and, despite a number of injuries, was not discharged until 1918. Upon his discharge from the army, he resumed his studies at the Academy where he met Ethel Bartlett, another of Matthay's pupils. They married in 1921. He began a career as a solo pianist, performing in recitals through the 1920s, then formed a duo with Bartlett in 1924. He died in Los Angeles, California, on November 5, 1956.

Bartlett and Robertson

Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson married in 1921 and began performing as a piano duet in 1924. They toured together during the next few decades and recorded several albums of piano duet music. They commissioned works for piano duet from prominent composers of the period, including Benjamin Britten, Arnold Bax, and Bohuslav Martinů. Their repertoire included arrangements of other compositions, often completed by Bartlett and Robertson themselves. The duo was also known for revivals of older music, performing two-piano arrangements of music by William Byrd, John Bull, Giles Farnaby, and other early English composers. Throughout the 1930s and 1940s, they toured across Europe and the Americas and recorded albums under His Master's Voice and Columbia Masterworks. Bartlett and Robertson owned a summer home in California where they hosted other musical artists of the time, including Benjamin Britten and Peter Pears. In the early 1950s, they officially settled in California and continued performing as a duo until Robertson's death in 1956.

Scope and Content Note

The Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson Music and Other Papers span from 1914 to 1970 and primarily consist of materials pertaining to Bartlett and Robertson's performing career. The largest portion is the Music series, chiefly comprised of manuscript music for piano duo. It includes newly composed works for two pianos commissioned by or dedicated to Bartlett and Robertson, piano duet arrangements and transcriptions by Bartlett and Robertson and others, and works composed by Bartlett and Robertson, among other scores and parts.

The Writings series includes writings by Bartlett, Robertson, and others, as well as transcripts for talks and lectures. Programs and Promotional Materials consists of programs for performances by Bartlett, Robertson, and others, as well as promotional flyers and clippings. The Miscellany series contains correspondence between Bartlett and others, including John Barbirolli and Laura Knight; photographs of Bartlett alone and with Robertson; a sketchbook; and financial papers.
