Summary: The American Conservatory at Fontainebleau was originally established in 1919 to improve the quality of United States military bands mobilized in France at the end of World War I. In 1921, the school opened to American civilians, welcoming music students for summer classes in the Louis XV wing of the Château de Fontainebleau. The School of Fine Arts was established in 1923, and architecture has become the focus of its instruction. Still active today, the Conservatory's faculty has featured prominent musicians such as Maurice Ravel, Nadia Boulanger, and Francis Poulenc, and notable alumni include Philip Glass, Donald Grantham, Adolphus Hailstork, and Louise Talma. Though student applications comprise the bulk of the records, there are also publicity materials, other administrative records, and publications documenting the activities of the Fontainebleau Alumni Association.

Scope and Content Note

The American Conservatory at Fontainebleau Records span from 1922 to 2022, the bulk of which date from 1947 to 1980. The Student Applications series contains applications that students submitted for the music and fine arts schools between 1947 and 1980. There are also applications present for cancellations. While many applications include students' photographs, résumés, petition and reference letters, college and university transcripts, G. I. Bill certificates, tuition and scholarship information, travel arrangements, and correspondence with the admission officer, not all of these materials may be present for each application. Notable names such as Louise Talma, Nadia Boulanger, Robert Casadesus, Germaine Tailleferre, Paul Hindemith, and Darius Milhaud appear in the recommendation letters. Notable music students with applications found in the series include Donald Grantham, Philip Glass, Charles Fox, Adolphus Hailstork, Andreas Makris, Joe Raposo, and Louise Talma. Geraldine Ostrove, longtime employee of the Music Division at the Library of Congress, was also a student. The applications offer perspective on the international and artistic community fashioned at Fontainebleau through student demographics over the years and the personal relationships some of the students established with the institution. The applications for music students in 1966 are not present.

The Alumni Association Records contain materials created by the Conservatory's alumni association, including issues of the Alumni Bulletin publication, lists of alumni, announcements of upcoming events, governance and financial documents, correspondence, programs for concerts and events, and three scrapbooks.

The Publicity Materials primarily consist of brochures that may have been distributed to colleges and universities to encourage students to apply for study at Fontainebleau. There are also clippings and articles about the Conservatory, its faculty, and its students; examples of advertisements for other summer study courses in the arts; and a publication regarding the Conservatory's history and centennial.

Correspondence, artwork, lecture notes, lists of faculty and students, minutes, photographs, and programs primarily comprise the Other Records series. There are also publications about art and France, repertoire lists, a syllabus, and a tribute to Camille Decreus.

Series

BOX 1-58, 64, 66R-71R Student Applications, 1947-1980

This series consists of student applications for the American Conservatory at Fontainebleau submitted between 1947 and 1980. While many applications include students' photographs, résumés, petition letters, reference letters, college and university transcripts, and correspondence with the admission officer, not all of these materials may be present for each application. Observations from the admission officer on students' materials are also occasionally reported. Travel accommodation and documents relating to financial funding and scholarships also appear with some applications, as well as certificates regarding the specific status of students attending the school with support of the G. I. Bill.

Notable names such as Louise Talma, Nadia Boulanger, and Robert Casadesus frequently recur throughout the series in correspondence. Others, like Germaine Tailleferre, Paul Hindemith, and Darius Milhaud, sporadically appear in the recommendation letters supporting the students' applications. Students who later gained prominence include Donald Grantham, Philip Glass, Adolphus Hailstork, Andreas Makris, Joe Raposo, and Louise Talma. In the 1970s, institutions such as Catholic University in Washington, D.C., and the University of Tennessee submitted applications for several students as a group, and those groupings have been retained.

While the series provides insight into the selection process and student demographics of the American Conservatory throughout the years, it also shows the personal relationships that some of the students established with the institution and offers perspective on the international and artistic community fashioned in Fontainebleau.

The applications for music students in 1966 are not present.

The transcripts and G. I. Bill eligibility certificates are restricted for 75 years from the date of the transcript and certificate.

Arranged chronologically, then by Music Conservatory, Fine Arts School, and cancellations, and alphabetically by name therein.

BOX 60-61, 63, 65

Alumni Association Records, 1922-2021

This series contains materials created by the Conservatory's alumni association. This includes the Alumni Bulletin publication, announcements of upcoming events, invitations, correspondence, governance and financial documents, lists of alumni, a press release, programs for concerts and events, and three scrapbooks.

Arranged alphabetically by subject or format.

BOX 58-60, 64

Publicity Materials, 1923-2020

This series consists primarily of brochures that may have been distributed to colleges and universities to encourage students to apply for the summer study opportunity at the American Conservatory at Fontainebleau. These brochures typically contain details such as dates of study, lists of faculty, syllabi, concert schedules, tuition amounts, boarding information, and application criteria. The series also includes clippings and articles about the Conservatory, its faculty, and its students; examples of advertisements for other summer study courses in the arts; and the publication Fontainebleau Schools of Music and Fine Arts, 1921-2021 that celebrates the Conservatory's centennial.

Arranged alphabetically by title or format.

BOX 62, 64

Other Records, 1924-2022

This series includes correspondence, artwork, lecture notes, lists of faculty and students, minutes, photographs, programs, and publications about art and France. There are also repertoire lists, a syllabus, and a tribute to Camille Decreus.

Arranged alphabetically by format or subject.

Publicity Materials, 1923-2020

This series consists primarily of brochures that may have been distributed to colleges and universities to encourage students to apply for the summer study opportunity at the American Conservatory at Fontainebleau. These brochures typically contain details such as dates of study, lists of faculty, syllabi, concert schedules, tuition amounts, boarding information, and application criteria. The series also includes clippings and articles about the Conservatory, its faculty, and its students; examples of advertisements for other summer study courses in the arts; and the publication Fontainebleau Schools of Music and Fine Arts, 1921-2021 that celebrates the Conservatory's centennial.
Arranged alphabetically by title or format.
