Summary: The National Photo Company Collection documents virtually all aspects of Washington, D.C., life, including inaugurations, sports, landmarks, conventions, and topics of local interest. During the administrations of Presidents Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover, the National Photo Company supplied photographs of current news events in Washington, D.C., as a daily service to its subscribers. Herbert French, the National Photo Company owner and a photographer himself, was a member of the White House News Photographers at the time of its founding. He covered the administrations of Presidents Taft, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover. His collection of portraits includes many prominent officials and social figures. Visitors to the capital, protests and parades, conventions and meetings, events in Congress, inaugurations and White House events, and to a limited extent, world events in general are represented in the collection. Herbert French was particularly fond of baseball, and the Washington Senators are documented thoroughly, especially in years when they were the contenders for the pennant. Similarly he covered horse shows and automobile racing.

Note: Terminology in collection materials and descriptions may include negative stereotypes or words some may consider offensive. The Library includes historic captions because they can be important for understanding the context in which the images were created. Content of the images themselves and transcribed language in online records do not reflect the views of the Library of Congress. For questions or to provide more information about this material, please contact Prints and Photographs Division staff through our Ask a Librarian service.

Biographical Note/Organizational Note

Herbert E. French (1883-ca. 1950) was a reporter for Bradstreet Company when he bought the National Photo Company in 1912, adding to the company's resources his own stock of negatives dating back to about 1909. The National Photo Company operated as a news service to newspapers, news distributors, and other photo agencies, including Acme, Wide World, the Newspaper Enterprise Association (NEA), the Central Press Association (Cleveland, Ohio), the Washington Star, the New York Times, and the U.S. Daily. In addition, the National Photo Company provided advertising services to various clients, including the local Chamber of Commerce, and prepared photographically illustrated promotional brochures for commercial, fraternal, and service organizations. Herbert French's business correspondence indicates that he instructed his photographers to go after exclusives, that is, subjects not covered by crowds of other news photographers. He supplemented their output by purchasing photographs from other photographers and news agencies on a regular basis. The company's Washington, D.C., offices were located at 815 H Street NW in its earliest years, then moved to 1212 G Street NW, and finally to 923 F Street NW, where it closed after falling victim to the Depression. French continued his work as a commercial photographer from his home address, 227 Nichols Avenue SE.

Scope and Content Note

The National Photo Company Collection documents virtually all aspects of Washington, D.C., life. During the administrations of Presidents Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover, the National Photo Company supplied photographs of current news events in Washington, D.C., as a daily service to its subscribers. It also prepared sets of pictures on popular subjects and undertook special photographic assignments for local businesses and government agencies. The images date between ca. 1850 and 1945; the bulk of the images were created between 1909 and 1932. The photographic files of the National Photo Company, including an estimated 80,000 images (photographic prints and corresponding glass negatives), were acquired by the Library from its proprietor Herbert E. French in 1947. Most images are captioned. Many photographic prints are annotated with the number of the corresponding glass negative.

Available online are the glass negatives, a selection of about 1,900 photographic prints for which copy negatives exist, and images digitized on demand in response to researchers' purchase of reproductions or Library of Congress special projects. The scanned photographic prints represent a small cross-section of the entire corpus of photographic prints, which include individual prints grouped in LOTS, and prints presented in chronological albums covering events of the period 1919 to 1930 and thematic groups of photographs on the four presidents, inaugurations, sports, landmarks, conventions, and topics of local interest.

For more information about the entire collection and browse digitized images, refer to the Collection Profile: National Photo Company Collection.

Arrangement

The collection is primarily arranged into 46 groups (LOTs). Some materials have also been incorporated into the browsing files in the Prints and Photographs Reading Room.

The collection is organized in 4 series: albums, photographic prints, browsing files, and negatives. The albums are LOTs 12281 to 12299 and they are largely arranged chronologically but some are by subject. The loose unmounted photographic prints are grouped thematically in LOTs 12337 to 12368. Many of the thematic LOTs have subdivisions based on subject.

Some mounted photographic prints can also be found in the division's self-indexing browsing files including the Biographical File (BIOG FILE), Presidential File (PRES FILE), U.S. Geographical File (U.S. GEOG FILE), and Specific Subject File (SSF). Negatives are generally not served to researchers and are stored offsite.

Browsing Files

A selection of prints are available in the Prints and Photographs Reading Room files and interfiled in the following series: Biographical File (BIOG FILE), Presidential File (PRES FILE), U.S. Geographical File (U.S. GEOG FILE), and Specific Subject File (SSF). There is no comprehensive list but some items are identified in our Online Catalog as belonging to the National Photo Company collection.

Negatives

Negatives are generally not served to researchers and are stored offsite. Generally a print of each image is available in the collection. For more information see Alternate Formats.
