Processing History
The collection was originally inventoried by Gregory K. Hunt in the late 1990s before it came to the Library of Congress. Library staff including Ford Peatross, Brett Carnell, Greg Marcangelo, and Marcia Battle did preparatory work in 1998 and supplemented the Hunt inventory between 2004 and 2005. A preservation assessment was conducted by Library of Congress Conservator, Doris A. Hamburg, in 1998. In 2012, Bonnie Dziedzic and Mary Christ created a basic inventory of the collection. In 2017, Eric Peich, Bonnie Dziedzic, Emma Esperon, and Owen Ellis rehoused the slides and negatives. In 2019, Mari Nakahara and Vyta Basilevic surveyed the publications and books associated with the collection and transferred those materials to the appropriate Library of Congress holdings or disposition. In 2021-2022, Emma Esperon, Gillian Mahoney, Samantha Ruggirello, and Erin Ebert rehoused and processed the collection. Various items outside of the Prints and Photographs collecting scope were transferred to the appropriate Library of Congress division or disposition.

Information about the projects are largely based on the drawings' title blocks and supplemented for clarity and consistency by Library staff with information gleaned from the related office files and pictures. Call numbers and project numbers are assigned by Library staff and do not correlate to Goodman's contract numbers. To provide the most accurate representation of the date of documents available for each project, the most recent date found on an item is used to provide the date range for a folder. This reflects the current version of the drawings, rather than the multitude of revision dates a drawing or document may reflect. Documents are occasionally interfiled with the Drawings Series and Pictures Series when integral to the surrounding materials. The documents can include notes, correspondence, typed documents, brochures, pamphlets, business cards, clippings, among others. When needed, Library staff created surrogate images for negatives without corresponding prints and deteriorating textual documents that had severe preservation risks.
Some of the color film in the Charles M. Goodman Architectural Archive exhibit signs of deterioration or color shifting. The digital images presented in the collection are a reasonable reproduction of the color tones of the original film. No restoration or correction was applied to improve the depicted scene. All negatives, transparencies, and slides have item-level call numbers. The call numbers for the Film Series are derived from Goodman and his photographers' original numbering sequence when possible. Some call numbers for the Film Series are preceded or proceeded with letters. Capital letters are part of Goodman's original numbering sequence, e.g., LC-CMG13-477-A. Lowercase letters are provided by Library staff to differentiate items with the same Goodman call number, e.g., LC-CMG05-1227a. If there was no original item marking, the entire call number was devised by Library staff and indicated with the suffix -x, e.g., LC-CMG05-1-x.

Rights Restrictions

No known restrictions on publication. Privacy rights may apply, especially for photographs and drawings of residences. For additional information, see the Charles M. Goodman Architectural Archive "Rights and Restrictions Information."

Access Restrictions

Advance notice is needed to view materials in this collection, which is stored offsite. Requests to view original collection materials may be submitted through Ask A Librarian, or by paper form in the Prints and Photographs Reading Room. Some materials are already digitized. As a preservation measure, we generally do not serve an original item when a digital image is available.

Architectural drawings are served by appointment because material requires special handling. For general information see: "Service of Architectural Drawings."

Requesting Materials

Researchers should make requests at least 10 business days in advance of an anticipated visit, by selecting folders from the finding aid. All requests should be submitted through Ask A Librarian or in person in the Prints and Photographs Reading Room. Requests must include the Box Number, Folder Name, and Call Number for each folder. e.g. Box 170, Hollin Hills: Unit House 1, Call No.: ADE-CMG-170 (FM -- MCE size)

Because of space and resource constraints, the amount that can be requested at one time from the Drawing Series is limited: Researchers may request up to 10 folders from no more than 5 boxes per request and should allow 10 business days after the call slip is received before arriving to view the material. All requests should be submitted through Ask A Librarian or in person in the Prints and Photographs Reading Room. If more material is needed for viewing in a single visit, please consult reference staff regarding the feasibility of arranging for more material to be brought onsite and the time needed to make it available. Once materials are ready, they will be placed on hold for 30 days before being returned to the off-site location. One 30-day extension is permitted.

For additional information about service in the Prints and Photographs Reading Room, including obtaining copies, see "Information for Researchers."

Navigating the Finding Aid

Each entry in the finding aid, across the five series (DRWG, PICT, OFFI, FILM, and MISC), gives the box/folder information, project/folder name, call number, and when appropriate project number and extent (amount and format of items). Additional information is provided when appropriate, primarily in the Project Index and Drawing Series. This can include date, location, client, related contributor names, alternative project names, types of drawings or pictures (e.g., Sketches, Mechanical systems drawings, Architectural models, Landscape photographs, etc.), among other fields. Information about the projects are largely based on the drawings' title blocks and supplemented for clarity and consistency by Library staff with information gleaned from the related office files and pictures. Some information transcribed from the title blocks may be out of date in comparison to recent research, especially reflecting changes in street address post occupancy. Spelling errors have been corrected to aid searching.

To identify all material related to a particular project, search the entire finding aid. The same project may be referred to using several names and have material in different media-based series of the contents list. The Project Index correlates various parts of a project and provides keyword searchable project titles and project numbers.
To keyword search using project numbers, use the Project Index to locate the appropriate project number. Please note that additions have different project numbers than the original building. The project number is used across media formats to correlate all parts of a project. For example, all results for Alcoa House (1957) should appear if you keyword search "Project No.: 5". For more selective keyword searching, append the media-based code to the end of the project number to filter your search. For example, to find media specific materials on the Alcoa House (1957), keyword search:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Search</th>

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5-DRWG</td>

<td>Office Files of the Alcoa House (1957)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5-FILM</td>
<td>Film (usually slides) of the Alcoa House (1957)</td>

</tbody>
</table>

Projects will have significant amounts of material in more than one area of the Finding Aid. Do not stop your search after a single result.

Scope and Content Note

The collection includes the architectural designs and works of architect, Charles M. Goodman, and his firm, Charles M. Goodman Associates. The collection includes more than 14,400 drawings, 7,200 pages of office files, 9,700 pictures, and 5,600 slides. Dating from 1935 to 2001, these materials represent more than 400 commissions and projects for commercial and residential buildings and housing developments in Washington, D.C., and surrounding suburbs in Virginia and Maryland.

Prior to World War II, Goodman was a leading designer of government buildings, including the Federal Building at the New York World's Fair, United States Post Offices in many locations, and the International Terminal Building at Washington D.C.'s National Airport. In the post-war period he established his role in the Modernist design movement, doing much to define the form of the American house in the 1950s and 1960s. Over 100,000 houses were erected by National Homes according to his designs. His Usonian Hollin Hills housing development in Alexandria, Virginia, done in collaboration with the landscape architect Dan Kiley, is an exemplar of geometric lines and floor-to-ceiling windows used to integrate the interior and exterior into the nature of a wooded hillside. Goodman was at the forefront of experimentation in new building technologies and materials, including prefabricated and precast construction and the use of aluminum. In partnership with National Homes and Federal Housing Administration (FHA), Goodman focused on the potential of prefabricated housing structures as affordable housing for the middle class. A wide range of building types are represented in the Goodman archive, expressive of the post-war building boom in the United States: residential homes, shopping and commercial centers, service stations, showrooms, motels, clubs, embassies, school and university buildings, churches, buildings for the military, planned communities, and memorials. In addition to corporate clients, Goodman's clients also included many notable figures such as: Martin Agronsky, Eric Sevareid, Philip and Katharine Graham, Carlisle H. Humelsine, and Robert Straus. Visual and textual materials document various phases of the design process, through preliminary sketches to working drawings as well as photographs and specifications of built projects. The archive also includes engineering drawings and landscape architecture drawings by other creators.

Goodman was also a consummate architectural renderer who guided a small office that produced thousands of drawings, many of them perspective renderings of the highest quality. Often Goodman's working drawings included screen tone (also known as sticky back or Zipatone) to create such polished drafts that they can easily be confused with a final drawing. His drawings were widely published and exerted their own influence on architectural graphic style in the post-war period.

Within the collection there are 5 media-based series: Drawings (DRWG), Office Files (OFFI), Pictures: Photographic Prints and Other Images (PICT), Negatives, Transparencies, Slides, and Microfilm (FILM), and Miscellany (MISC). The Drawings (DRWG) series encompasses original and reproduction drawings in all phases of design including sketches, presentation drawings, and planning drawings as well as architectural drawings, electrical systems drawings, landscape architecture drawings, mechanical systems drawings, plumbing drawings, structural systems drawings, industrial design drawings, and graphic design drawings. The vast majority are sketches and architectural drawings. The Office Files (OFFI) series primarily includes specifications but also encompasses schedules, color schemes, card file indexes of photographers, inventories of materials, and other textual documents. The Pictures: Photographic Prints and Other Images (PICT) series primarily includes photographic prints but also encompasses contact sheets, prints, promotional materials, watercolors, and other visual material. They depict architectural photographs, landscape photographs, aerial photographs, architectural models, design drawings, and people. The Negatives, Transparencies, Slides, and Microfilm (FILM) series includes still film materials in various sizes. All sheet film have a surrogate in the Pictures (PICT) series, while slides and microfilm are served to researchers. The slides have similar content to the Pictures (PICT) series and include more snapshots. The Miscellany (MISC) series includes architectural drafting tools and samples of original housings.

Projects of particular interest include:

- Alcoa House (Project No.: 4 to 6)
- Andrews Air Force Base (Project No.: 13)
- Bancroft Construction Co. (Project No.: 17)
- The Commons (Project No.: 51 to 65)

Arrangement

The collection is organized into five main series: Drawings (DRWG), Office Files (OFFI), Pictures: Photographic Prints and Other Images (PICT), Negatives, Transparencies, Slides, and Microfilm (FILM), as well as Miscellany (MISC). Within each series, the materials are organized by size and then roughly alphabetically by project name or folder title with multi-project compilations, unidentified projects, non-Goodman projects, and personal materials filed at the end of the series.

Collection materials from a single project can span multiple media formats and are thus filed into multiple series based on the media type. Each project has been assigned a project number by Library staff to correlate project materials across series. For example the Alcoa House (1957) has the project number 5, so the 1957 Alcoa House's architectural drawings are identified as 5-DRWG, office files are 5-OFFI, and pictures are 5-PICT. For a listing of all projects and their correlating project number see the Project Index. All materials within a folder share the same call number; to identify individual drawings use the reproduction number if available (e.g., LC-DIG-ppmsca-12345).

The slides have similar content to the Pictures (PICT) series and include more snapshots.
The materials are arranged by media type (Slides and Stereographic Slides and Microfilm), followed by alphabetical order of project name or title. Multi-project compilations, unidentified projects, and personal materials are filed at the end of each media type. Slides are described in ranges based on their original housing in either slide boxes (no original order within the grouping) or slide carousels (original order preserved and notated).

Guide to the Project Index

The Project Index summarizes information about the project present in this finding aid and correlates the project across media-based series or filing locations. Each horizontal row correlates to a project. Browse or download the Project Index here.

Project No.
Number assigned by Library staff to a project. Additions and revisions have different project numbers than the original building. Large complexes are often subdivided by building or building type into their own project numbers.

Project Name
Name assigned to a project, largely based on the drawings' title blocks. Residences start with the last name of the client. Large complexes include a hierarchical title starting with the complex name and narrowing to the building or building type name. e.g., Bancroft Residence, The Commons: Town Houses: First Cluster

Alternative Project Names
Names of the building or structure that are not the primary access point. This can include historical names that predate Goodman's work, new names that postdate Goodman's work, as well as variations used during design and construction.

See Also
Occasionally project names were drastically changed or were originally identified as part of a larger portfolio of work, such as change of ownership or a portfolio of project done by a developer. In these rare instances similar material may fall into two distinct project numbers and are cross referenced in this field.

Project Type
The general term for the category of building (e.g., residences, commercial facilities, schools, etc.).

Start and End Date
The year or year range of the project. The dates are devised based on items from the collection and not external research. The dates used to form this range are the most recent date found on an item to provide the most accurate representation of the date of documents available for each project. This reflects the current version of the drawings, rather than the multitude of revision dates a drawing or document may reflect.

Location
The geographic location of the project, often city and state information but can also include street address, intersections, county, country, lot, section, or square.

State
The simplified geographic location of the project expressed as the state abbreviation for easy browsing.

Clients
Name of the owner(s) or developer(s) who commissioned the structure. Names are listed: last name, first name, role. e.g., Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Carl and Virginia, owner; Westpark Associates, developer

Related Contributor Names
Name of a person or organization that worked on the project such as landscape architects, other architecture firms, developers, and select builders, construction companies, draftsmen, and sponsors. This does not include Goodman, his office, or delineators. Names are listed: last name, first name, role. e.g., Voigt, Lou Bernard, landscape architect; Alcoa, sponsor

Physical Location of Materials
Materials are filed primarily by media type into series: Drawings (DRWG), Office Files (OFFI), Pictures: Photographic Prints and Other Images (PICT), Slides and Microfilm (FILM). An X in the Project Index table indicates materials are present within the series for the given project.
Project Index

The Project Index assigns a project number to each project so that the project can be correlated across media-based series or filing locations. The project number creates a standardized search point since the same project may be referred to using several names and have material in different media-based series of the contents list.

The Project Index is organized alphabetically by project name with multi-project compilations, unidentified projects, non-Goodman projects, and personal materials filed at the end. It can also be downloaded and sorted by various fields.

To keyword search in the finding aid using project numbers, use the Project Index to locate the appropriate project number. Please note that additions have different project numbers than the original building. The project number is used across media formats to correlate all parts of a project. For example, Alcoa House (1957) has the project number 5. You can search for all results regardless of media format for that project or for more selective keyword searching, append the media-based code to the end of the project number to filter your search. For example, keyword search: "Project No.: 5" for all results, "5-DRWG" for drawings, "5-OFFI" for office files, and "5-PICT" for pictures. Materials in the Miscellany Series (MISC) do not correlate to a specific project and thus do not have project numbers. To keyword search in our Online Catalog for digitized images, use the same project number tactic but also include “CMG” in your search term.
