Processing History

The Copyright Deposits: Class KFO was processed by Brett Carnell in April 2022. Finding aid encoded by Brett Carnell in March 2023. Postcards found in the collection were filed into the Postcard Filing Series.

The entries in the finding aid may include: title, date, call number, registration number, claimant, and text from Copyright Office records. The title is transcribed from the item when possible; titles devised by Library staff are in brackets. The year included in the container list directly after the title (e.g., Luciana en Capuchon, 1949) was transcribed from the work itself (e.g., as part of the copyright notice, in a title block, or as signed and dated by the creator). The year in which the Copyright Office received the work, as indicated by a date stamp, appears as part of the call number (e.g., 1950 in the call number: USCO-Class KFO-1950-3). The call number is devised by the Prints & Photographs Division based on the copyright class, year the work was received, and registration number. Some call numbers were not assigned because that registered item was not received by the Prints & Photographs Division when the Copyright Office transferred the materials. The registration number was assigned by the Copyright Office in a one-up numbering system based on when the material was submitted for copyright registration. Claimant was transcribed from the item. Text from the Copyright Office records was transcribed from the Catalog of Copyright Entries with information in brackets provided by Library staff.

Organizational History

The US Copyright Office began using the KFO Class on November 14, 1949 and continued assigning items to it until December 31, 1977. Class KFO was used for prints and pictorial illustration published abroad that were registered under a special provision, enacted on June 3, 1949, which allowed foreign authors to submit an additional copy of their work in lieu of a fee. The Copyright Office used a one-up numbering system based on when the material was submitted for copyright registration. The first 19 items submitted for registration under the KFO class were registered as "KO" by Copyright Office staff.

Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of a selection of prints submitted for copyright registration in the Copyright Office's KFO class, which includes prints and pictorial illustrations by non-US citizens between 1949 and 1977. Most of the creators are from Canada, Germany, or England. The collection includes a variety of printed media including advent calendars, a family tree form, a deck of playing cards, greeting cards, a placemat, prints, jigsaw puzzles, and a piece of stationery. Both the subject matter and printing techniques in the collection are wide ranging.

Arrangement

The collection is arranged into prints smaller than 25 x 38 cm (F size) and those larger (C size). Within each size the items are in sequential order by copyright registration. The Copyright Office assigned the prefix KO to the first 19 items and these are filed before the items assigned the prefix KFO.
