Summary: The M & S Collection of American Radical Extremist Literature of the 20th Century's diversity is a reflection of this medley of American radical views. The collection documents the activities of extremist groups and their visions of the good community from 1934 to 1981, with the majority of the material centering on the years 1950 to 1981. The Collection embraces a vast number of subjects in a wide range of formats and genres, including broadsides, pamphlets, books, newspapers, newsletters, magazines, subscription and membership cards, order blanks, petitions, catalogs, advertisements, article reprints, and bumper stickers. The collection is strongest in printed ephemera: fund-raising letters, rally flyers, book order-forms, stickers, membership flyers, and propaganda pieces produced by many sorts of radical Americans. These materials chronicle the activities of radical groups, rallying, funds raising, propagandizing, theorizing, and petitioning.

Provenance

The Library of Congress purchased The M & S Collection of American Radical Extremist Literature of the 20th Century (also known as the M & S American Extremism Collection) from M & S Rare Books of Weston, Massachusetts, in late 1981.

Processing History

The collection was inventoried by David Sukites and Michael Coventry in 1991. Michael Coventry authored the scope and contents note. David Kennaly and David Sukites arranged the collection into series in 1993.

Related Material

In addition to the M & S Collection of American Radical Extremist Literature of the 20th Century, the Rare Book and Special Collections Division maintains several other important collections related to American radicalism. Firstly, the Anarchism Collection consists of more than 2,000 books and pamphlets by and about anarchists relating to anarchism and anarcho-syndicalism. Most pamphlets in the collection were published in the United States for French-, German-, Italian-, and Russian-speaking communities. A finding aid is available in the Rare Book Room for the use of this collection. Secondly is the House Un-American Activities Committee Collection. This collection contains 4,000 items covering a wide range of topics including: labor, communism, fascism, and neocolonialism were addressed by major figures in American communism and socialism. The publications in the collection are most extensive for the study of the American left. In addition, the Division maintains the Paul Avrich Collection of books, newspapers, pamphlets, recorded sound and video, and ephemera related to the study of anarchism in the 20th century as well as the Radical Pamphlet Collection, which includes Pamphlets, newspapers, periodicals, broadsides, posters, cartoons, sheet music, and prints relating primarily to American communism, socialism, and anarchism from 1870 through 1980.

The Library keeps nearly complete runs of serials, such as American Mercury and Gerald L. K. Smith's The Cross and the Flag from both the Right and the Left. Many book and pamphlet titles by rightists and leftists are available in the general stacks as well.

The Manuscript Division of the Library maintains custody of the papers of many who figured prominently in American history during the period covered by the M & S Collection of American Radical Extremist Literature of the 20th Century. The papers of New Mexico Congressman James Clinton Anderson, Pennsylvania Congressman James Patrick McGranecy and his wife, Regina Clark McGranery, and Senator F. Green of Rhode Island, are particularly helpful for the study of anticommunism. Worthy of special note are the papers of Lawrence Edmund Spivak, publisher of American Mercury magazine during its left-leaning days. The Spivak papers contain materials from one of Spivak's later ventures, the Meet the Press broadcasts. These include viewer correspondence and radio and television transcripts of programs dealing with topics like the John Birch Society and anticommunism. For the study of the Left the Manuscript Division holds the papers of A. Philip Randolph, a Civil Rights leader, as well as a microfilm copy of the papers of the Socialist party in the United States (1897-1976). Finally, the Manuscript Division maintains the papers of Justice Earl Warren, prominent Supreme Court Justice during much of the Civil Rights era.

Scope and Content Note

The M & S Collection of American Radical Extremist Literature of the 20th Century chronicles the activities of a variety of persons and groups who attempted to offer an alternative vision of society. People have pursued the "good community" for centuries. While some reformers tried to establish separatist utopian communities, others worked to mold the civic community to fit their own vision.

The M & S Collection of American Radical Extremist Literature of the 20th Century's diversity is a reflection of the medley of American radical views. The Collection documents the activities of extremist groups and their visions of the good community from 1934 to 1981, with the majority of the material centering on the years 1950 to 1981. The Collection embraces a vast number of subjects in a wide range of formats and genres, including broadsides, pamphlets, books, newspapers, newsletters, magazines, subscription and membership cards, order blanks, petitions, catalogs, advertisements, article reprints, and bumper stickers. The Collection is strongest in printed ephemera: fund-raising letters, rally flyers, book order-forms, stickers, membership flyers, and propaganda pieces produced by many sorts of radical Americans. These materials chronicle the activities of radical groups, rallying, fund raising, propagandizing, theorizing, and petitioning.

The collection's greatest strength is in materials relating to the American Right during the 20th century. They especially document the religious Right's involvement with nationalism, anticommunism, antihumanism, anti-Semitism, and the movement for media decency. It also partly describes various religious groups, such as the Unification Church, Church of Scientology, and the Church of God International.

The Collection also includes a panoply of materials from the Left groups of the 1960s, and 1970s, including the 1970s movements against nuclear weapons and nuclear power. It addresses the movement against the Vietnam War only in part, but covers the 1970s and early 1980s "peace" movements on behalf of various Third World nations in more detail. It also partly chronicles the Civil Rights and Black Power movements, and the movements for women's rights and gay rights.

This release includes the first four series; Magazines, Newspapers, Newsletters and Pamphlets. Future releases will be made available with the full seven series including Broadsides, Ephemera and Books.
